The Mickle Street Review is an annual publication sponsored by the Walt Whitman Association, which maintains Whitman's home in Camden as a historic site, and by Rutgers University. Address all correspondence to Geoffrey M. Sill, Editor, The Mickle Street Review, University College, Rutgers University, 311 N. 5th St., Camden NJ 08102. Manuscripts must be accompanied by a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Subscription orders ($3.50/year) may be sent to the same address. Make checks payable to WW Assoc./MSR.

Special thanks are due the following writers and presses for permission to reprint previously printed and copyrighted works: Antler, Section III from FACTORY (City Lights Books, 1980); Elizabeth Searle Lamb, "At Cranberry and Fulton Streets" (FLATBUSH MAGAZINE, 1965); Howard Nelson, "Reading 'Crossing Brooklyn Ferry' On a Summer Morning" (MISSOURI REVIEW).
