

Geraldine C. Little

CHARLES ELIOT NORTON OF HARVARD: POSSIBLE THOUGHTS BEFORE WRITING HIS REVIEW OF LEAVES OF GRASS

I tremble. The strange notes in my head move
provocative as rare moths sudden over a marsh
which has harbored
only the placidity
of known species
and I write,
"The writer is a new light in poetry."